MONTCLAIR.
The usual Sunday Services will take place at all our churches on Sunday next at the customary hours.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Tilton has been in town for a few days during the past week, visiting at the residence of Mr. Tubbs.

Our well known fellow townsman, Wm. Torrey, Esq., is hourly expected home from his eighteen month's tour in foreign countries.

Our hotels and summer boarding houses are fast filling up with an excellent class of boarders, and there is every prospect of a lively summer.

Mr. John Stuart Angell, of the firm of J. J. Stuart & Co. of New York City, has rented the elegant residence of Mr. A. D. Dickinson on Elm St., for the summer season.

Within a few weeks the complimentary concert to our well known musician, Prof. Geo. W. Poole, will take place, when will be presented music of the highest class by our most talented artists.

Another week will doubtless see our new Mastic Lodge organized and in full operation. At a meeting held on Monday evening last all preliminaries were arranged and notice issued to all interested.

The Board of Assessors assert that they will have a fair and reasonable compensation for taking the census, which they are now at work upon, or they will pay the fine of twenty-five dollars and not make any return.

The Roman Catholic Society over which Rev. Father A. M. Steets presides holds its annual picnic on Monday, July 5th, at Gallagher's Woods, across the High Bridge at Ridgewood Station on the D. L. & W. R. R.

The Public Schools will commence their annual long vacation on Saturday the 26th inst. Teachers and scholars both need rest and recuperation after their close confinement of over nine months to books and desks.

On Sunday last as young Thompson and others were strolling through Crane's woods, they found several articles of clothing, which were stolen from the residence of Mr. Reynolds some two weeks ago, and restored them to their owner.

The petition for a new road between the Midland and Morris and Essex depots has received the signature of many of our best citizens. It is proposed to cross the Crane property in a direct line, thereby making a saving of three-fourths of a mile over the present roads.

It is currently reported that on Sunday evening last James Trainor, the well known coachman of Mr. Benedict, and Miss Maria Nolan, the "Sweet Maid of Erin," stole a march upon their many friends who were watching for their appearance at church, and were privately united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The Town Committee have caused notices to be issued for a meeting of the legal voters in Ward District No. 1, at Jacobus Building, on Tuesday evening 22d inst., at 8 o'clock, to see what action shall be taken on the petition of N. T. Porter and others for the improvement of Harrison avenue and the Valley Road.

On Friday evening next, (June 18th) the Montclair Dramatic Association will give one of their unique entertainments at Jacobus Hall for the benefit of the New York Children's Aid Society. The plays to be presented are "The Maid of Croissey," and the laughable farce of "Turn Him Out." Tickets are selling rapidly and there is every prospect of a good audience and handsome pecuniary results.

Two runaways during the week have made busy times for our carriage builders and blacksmiths. Baldwin's milk team has had another pull at it, scattering the lactical fluid in one direction, the cans in another, and leaving the vehicle in different sections of the town. Kiefer's horse ran away with his butcher wagon a day or two ago and for a few moments fresh meat was lower than it had been before for many a month.

Look out for the tramps. Several times during the past week have suspicious characters been seen in our village and orders have been issued for the immediate arrest and detention of all who cannot give a satisfactory account of themselves. Several small robberies have been reported but they are hardly worthy of note. The robbery at Mrs. Taylor's residence on Gates ave., last week when clothing to the amount of nearly two hundred dollars was stolen, and that of Mr. Parson's coachman on Saturday evening last when about one hundred dollars worth of property was secured, are the two heaviest items of criminal news for the week. The coachman of Mr. Parson's seems to be peculiarly unfortunate in this respect, this being the second time within a month that he has been raided on. It will not be safe to try it again for another month at least, for he proposes to sit up nights after he retires to lay for that fellow and his associates, if any he has.

The Battle of Bunker Hill.

The New York Herald, in an account of the building of the intrenchments at and near Bunker Hill, makes Prescott the hero of the day instead of Warren, and says that the British made two direct assaults upon the works, which were repulsed with great loss, our men, by direction and the stern oversight of Prescott and Stark, reserving their fire till the foe was within six or eight rods. After the second assault and its repulse, Howe sent over orders to Burgoyne, on Copp's hill, to set fire to the town. He was obeyed, and the thickly settled part of Charlestown, the houses of which had been mostly deserted, was laid in ashes. The British officers were mortified and maddened at seeing "the finest soldiery in the world" compelled twice to show their backs to a handful of rustics whom they had represented as mere poltroons. Some of the regulars were so stricken with panic as even to make for their boats. Their officers were seen to goad them on and prick them with their swords for the second and third assault.

The third assault was successful. There were then less than two hundred men in the redoubt, their ammunition was spent, and not fifty of them had bayonets. But they made a gallant stand to the last. They lobbed their muskets and even threw the loose bloody stones around them at the invaders. Howe had discovered the weak point in our defenses, and by a vigorous rush behind the breastwork he carried it. The men left in it, now in effect unarmed, retreated by leave of Prescott. A little longer defense at the rail fence protected this retreat, though Warren fell just after he left the redoubt.

The heroic provincial commander of the day, though conspicuous for exposing himself and in peril during the whole action, escaped unharm, his apparel pierced and torn. Prescott had been so undaunted by the scene and its result that, on his return to Cambridge, he implored General Ward to give him two fresh regiments, promising to retake the ground that night. He complained bitterly that he had not been reinforced, as he had sent an urgent appeal in the forenoon by Major Brooks, afterward governor of the State, for such relief. The circumstances already referred to, which left Ward so uncertain about the movements of the enemy and the extreme difficulty of passing any large companies of men across the Charlestown Neck, must, at least, account for the seeming inefficiency of the provincial commander-in-chief.

The casualties of the day's action on the side of the Americans were—115 killed, 305 wounded and thirty taken prisoners—in all 450. In his return to the British War Department General Gage acknowledged a loss of 1,954 men, among whom were thirteen commissioned officers killed and seventy wounded.

The Earthquake in New Granada.
Further information has been received by way of Havana of the terrible calamity in New Granada. The whole valley of Cucuta, in New Granada, near the Venezuelan frontier, has been devastated by an earthquake, and it is said that 16,000 persons have lost their lives. The valley of Cucuta is in the Province of Pamplona, a mountainous section of New Granada, in which the peak of Almorador, 12,850 feet high, is situated. The range to which this belongs is about two hundred and fifty miles from the Pacific coast, about the same distance from the Caribbean Sea, and but a short distance from the Venezuelan frontier. In this region traces of the most violent volcanic action are visible on every hand. This action is of so recent a date as in many places to keep the soil in a heated condition.

There have been numerous earthquakes in the United States and South America, but none in connection with which such tremendous destruction is recorded as in the above. In 1811 occurred the famous series of earthquakes in Missouri, which Humboldt studied and described. Over an extent of country stretching for 300 miles southward from the mouth of the Ohio River the ground rose and sunk in great undulations for months. The disturbances continued over what has since been called the "sink country" until March 26, 1812, when they ceased coincidentally with the great earthquake of Caracas. About midnight on February 20, 1855, the City of Concepcion, Chili was destroyed by an earthquake. It probably originated near the islands of Juan Fernandez, where a volcano burst forth through a depth of 400 feet of water, sending up a column of fiery ejecta, which killed immense numbers of fish in the vicinity. Many thousands of persons lost their lives on this occasion.

On March 19, 1873, the City of San Salvador was utterly destroyed. Three shocks were experienced but the inhabitants were, by the previous notice, so well warned that a comparatively small loss of life (about five hundred) took place. The frequency of earthquakes in this region is expressly told in the narrative to be by the aboriginal Indians—Custatians—"the land that swines like a hammock." But by far the most awful earthquake ever recorded in history is that of Lisbon, on the 1st of November, 1755. About nine o'clock in the morning a hollow thunder-like sound was heard in the city, although the weather was clear and serene. Almost immediately afterwards, without any other warning, such an upheaval and overturning of the ground occurred as destroyed the greater part of the houses, and buried or crushed no less than 30,000 persons. As it was a festival day most of the churches were filled with their congregations, and each church became a flaming pyre for the hapless victims, for the burning tapers set the woodwork on fire and the people were both crushed and burned. In the whole region about 60,000 persons lost their lives; and on the opposite side of the Mediterranean, in Morocco, the earth opened and swallowed a town with 8,000 inhabitants. The enormous sea-waves caused by these disturbances destroyed hundreds of vessels with their crews.
